Disinfecting the Pipes

Saves Doctor's Bills

Flood the Pipes With Strong Solution of Borax Water and You Will Have a Cleaner and More Sanitary Home.

Borax is more than a cleanser—a cutter of dirt and grease—it is a disinfectant as well. Drain and waste pipes fill and clog up and force foul air back up in the room—this is dangerous to good health.

These pipes should be cleaned and flushed regularly. The best way to do it is to flood the pipes with boiling water to which a liberal amount of Borax has been added. This will cut the dirt and grease in the pipes, permitting a free flow of waste water. This regular disinfecting of the pipes may save doctor bills and means a sweeter, more wholesome home.

Always use 20-Mule Team Borax, as it is always the same and can be depended upon. Put up in convenient 10c and 50c sizes at all dealers. Send a postal to the Pacific Coast Borax Co., 1520 McCormick Bldg., Chicago, for a copy of the new and useful booklet, "The Magic Crystal."

HE SAYS CLOTHES CAUSED HIM PAIN

Peculiar Condition of W. W. Jackson—Chest Muscles Were So Sore He Could Not Endure the Pressure of the Bed Clothes.

Mr. W. W. Jackson, a veteran of the Spanish-American war, suffered from a peculiar malady. He was told he had but a short time to live, but his improvement is rapid under proper treatment. He addressed the following letter to the public in appreciation for the services rendered him:

"I have lived in East Liverpool all my life and am a cooper by trade. When I was in the Spanish-American war I contracted kidney trouble and rheumatism, which became so bad that I could not work. The muscles across my chest were so sore that I could not stand the pressure of the bed clothes. My back ached and troubled me so bad that I couldn't sleep at night. They throbbed so that it seemed something would burst. My right knee was swollen and ached so that many a night I have set by the stove with my knee in the oven to try to drive away the pain. I had doctors, but they failed to do me any good. One told me that I only had a short time to live, and that I had better prepare to die."

When I read about the United Doctors I thought I would see what they could do for me. When I called at their office a week ago they gave me a careful examination and told me they could help me. I took their medicine and in one week they have done more than all the other doctors combined. The pains are gone from my chest, my kidneys are improved so that I hardly notice any trouble, the pains are driven from my knee. I can sleep well now and feel much stronger. The United Doctors have done wonders for me at a very reasonable charge. I live at 418 Summit Lane, and will answer any questions.

Yours,
W. W. JACKSON.

ROMANCE MAY UNITE TWO FAMOUS WRITERS

MARIE CORELLI.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—Sir James Barrie and George Bernard Shaw had a rather doleful meeting at the Adelphi hotel, where they both live, the other morning. They both agreed that the dramatic critics who "abused" their new plays "Androcles and the Lion" and "The Adored One" were a pretty trashy outfit. Both playwrights have left town, Barrie retreating to his Scottish home, Killinrankie cottage, which nestles amid sombre hills in Perthshire.

The cottage, only recently rented by Barrie, is the basis of much amusement in London literary circles; a most surprising romance may spring out of the new tenancy. It formerly belonged to Marie Corelli, of whose work Barrie cannot be said to be a great admirer. They had occasion to exchange correspondence over certain matters connected with the cottage, which resulted in a personal meeting in the town.

Miss Corelli was present at the first night of "The Adored One," as the author's guest and his friends say the shy dramatist, who has been almost a woman hater since his divorce, has shown himself most affable towards the fair, plump Marie, who has expressed sentiments of admiration for Barrie which are not in accordance with her usual scorn for all things masculine.

This rather incongruous literary friendship excited much interest. Further developments are anxiously awaited.

Try This! Hair Gets Thick, Glossy, Wavy and Beautiful at Once.

Immediate?—Yes! Certain?—that's the joy of it. Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a Danderine hair cleanse. SULZER'S SUCCESSOR ASKS FOR NEWSPAPER ADVICE

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 29.—Speaking at a banquet of up-state democratic editors Tuesday night, Gov. Glenn declared his independence of party leaders, said that he had no wish to succeed himself in office and told the newspaper men he wanted them to be his "kitchen cabinet."

A well known English doctor recently made the statement that only about 30 per cent of the present population of Great Britain has normal eyesight, and if things go on as they are going now, he foresees a time when practically the whole of the British nation will be a nation of spectacles.

PE-RU-NA DID WONDERS FOR ME.

MRS. ROSA BOYER

Mrs. Rosa Boyer, 1421 Sherman Ave., Evanston, Ill., writes: "If any one has reason to praise Peru-na it is surely myself."

"Last spring I became so run down from the serious effects of a lingering cold, that several complications united in pulling me down. I could neither eat nor sleep well, and lost flesh and spirit."

"I finally tried Peru-na and it did wonders for me. In two weeks I was like another person and in a month I felt better than I ever had before."

"I thank Peru-na for new life and strength. I send you two pictures, so you can see what Peru-na has done for me."

Some people find it more convenient to take tablets than fluid medicines. This is especially true of busy men who have some catarrhal affection, or some trouble with the stomach that does not actually prevent them from working as usual. We have had the Peru-na made into tablets for those who prefer to use them that way.

GERARD PASSES UP GOLD BRAID UNIFORM

New Ambassador Wears Plain Clothes When He is Presented to Kaiser.

BERLIN, Oct. 29.—Attired in civilian dress despite the fastidious traditions of the German court, James W. Gerard, the new American ambassador to Berlin, was presented to Emperor William Wednesday. The fact that Mr. Gerard wore the dress of "a plain American" gave rise to the impression that Pres. Wilson and Secretary Bryan had forbidden uniforms for ambassadors as unsuitable for representatives of the foremost republic.

The absence of uniforms upon Mr. Gerard and his secretaries, who were also presented was the more marked owing to the known love of the Kaiser for display and the gorgeous attire of the German officials.

The secretarial staff inherited handsome gold braided uniforms from the Lelshman regime, all of which are now apparently useless.

LITTLE OLD NEW YORK

BY NORMAN.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Who is Miss Lonesome of Rye?

Nobody knows, but Reginald P. Sherman, and he won't tell.

Reginald P. Sherman is editor of the Rye Courier, in which weekly publication there recently appeared the following advertisement:

"HUSBAND WANTED.
"Wanted—By a fair (not fat, nor yet forty) gentlewoman, with a large tract of land not far from Port Chester, an unselfish, decent, self-supporting man for a husband; would prefer a good, natural fool to a crank; no flirts nor elderly men need apply. Address Lonesome, care Rye Courier."

The day that advertisement appeared the good, old village of Rye just about stood on its head. The excitement spread up and down the shore of Long Island sound. The folks at Port Chester, naturally, were quite wrought up, the name of their bailiwick appearing so prominently in the advertisement.

Who could she be? Who was Miss Lonesome, who was seeking a husband in this brazen manner? The life of Reginald P. Sherman was miserable. His telephone rang incessantly. Mr. Sherman admitted that he knew who Miss Lonesome was, all right, but he wouldn't tell.

Then came reporters from New York and they besought Mr. Sherman to "put them wise" to Miss Lonesome. Nothing doing. But they wrote pieces for their papers, anyway.

Then the answers really began to come to Miss Lonesome. They Rye mail carrier had to make special trips to the Courier office.

One persistent reporter finally got an interview with Miss Lonesome—actually talked with her—but he doesn't know who she is. Editor Sherman made the reporter go out and stand on the sidewalk while he got Miss Lonesome on the telephone. Then the reporter came in and talked to her. He says she had a sweet voice. She said to him:

"I think a woman ought to be allowed to seek a husband in this manner, if she pleases, without all this fuss. I've had over 500 offers. I have answered three—one from Chicago, one from Butte and one from Los Angeles. The man in Los Angeles is a doctor. I have had two letters from him. They were sensible and yet full of love and tenderness. I think he will be the man."

So, if Los Angeles keeps its eyes open, it may find out who Miss Lonesome is before Rye does.
